wen it snowd, we all ran out of are houses and plaid in the street. Me and my brothers had the change to through a snowball at that grumpy old women from number five. Wot a laugh! Wen she hurled wun back we we're surprised, but it made us happy to realise that she still had sum fun left in her. Dad tryd to take some photo's of the event - I cant weight to see them. If their clear enough, Ill give her one. Later, when wed had a hot bath and supper, we wached the people walking about outside from the up-stares window. They were skidin about slidin on the snow. As soon as they saw us they pelted snowball at the window.

If you finish before the others, write about your own experiences of snow or add a paragraph to this story.

In two columns labelled noun and adjective list examples found in the passage below. Next label the three nouns that aren't common nouns.

We went walking in the woods today, squelching along paths that were muddy, as there had been a lot of rain. Many people were riding their horses on the tracks that wound through the trees, making the most of the sunshine. We saw a few squirrels scampering about between the trees and some late - or very early - gorse in bloom. In a grove of trees we spotted an old caravan covered in moss and Graham spent some time trying to work out how it got there, because there seemed to be no gap wide enough for it to have been pulled between the huge boles.

We have finished eating our supper. Dad chooses a book to read. Mum has put the dishes in the dishwasher. Mum puts up the ironing board. We children settle down on the carpet. We listen. We draw. We colour in. Mum sorts washing from the drier. She folds the clothes that don't need ironing. She makes a pile to be ironed. Dad is reading. He changes his voice to suit all the characters. We comment on what is happening in the story. We laugh at the funny bits. There are scary bits. There are tense moments. We jump about. We shriek excitedly. Mum irons. The steam from the iron hisses. These are happy times in our family. The bad news comes. The word is, 'Tooth-brush-time'. It is bedtime.
